BizPaL Simplifies Permits and Licences for Canadian Businesses to Help Create Jobs and Growth

BizPaL is an online service that benefits Canadian businesses by helping them identify which permits and licences they require and how to obtain them. Entrepreneurs simply provide information on the type of business they want to start or expand and the activities they plan to undertake. BizPaL then automatically generates a list of the required permits and licences from all levels of government, along with basic information on each, and links to government sites where the entrepreneur can learn more and, in some cases, apply online.

BizPaL also benefits governments by making it easier for them to provide businesses with accurate information on permits and licences. Although the service is offered online, it can also be used through other service channels (i.e., telephone and in-person centres) to extend services to more clients.

Industry Canada is the lead federal department for the BizPaL initiative, supporting the centralized functions of the project. The government is fully committed to creating a competitive business environment that supports innovation and reduces red tape.

The success of BizPaL is due in part to the multi-jurisdictional partnership among federal, provincial, territorial and municipal governments. The partnership operates under a shared governance and costing model with collaborative decision making. Each jurisdiction is responsible for adding and maintaining its own information in BizPaL.

Why BizPaL...

- It's free - Search for the permits and licences you may need to start or grow your business.
- Save time and money — Spend less time searching for information and more time building your business.
- Improve business planning — Know which permits and licences are needed so that you get it right the first time.
- Get answers — Available 24/7 to help you navigate government requirements specific to your business type.

Launched in 2005, BizPaL is jointly managed by a partnership involving governments at the federal, provincial, territorial and municipal levels. Provinces, territories and hundreds of municipalities have collaborated together to provide you with the permits and licences that may be required to start and grow your business.
